

Thursday 15 October

Today, may we remember all those who we recognise and love as part of our family, the stepfamily, the fostered and adopted, the cared for, the friends, welcomed in through relationships. Each and every one. Part of the family that tie us all together. Each unique and individual with that shared recognition of one. And we love them all.